Extended Learning & Distance Education
What are Extended Learning and Distance Education Courses? The Division of Extended Learning and Distance Education offers innovative programs designed to meet the educational needs of individuals who need alternatives to traditional educational scheduling formats. Most institutions of higher learning throughout the United States are utilizing unique instructional delivery systems such as these to provide professional development and college degree programs to individuals who work, have families and other life situations that limit or prohibit their ability to attend traditional classes. John Tyler is proud to offer a variety of options for people in these situations. Students utilizing these options must be prepared to take significant personal responsibility for course participation and success.
Distance Education Options

Internet Courses. Internet courses are designated in the schedule with an “N” in the section number (e.g., ACC 211-N1A); they are also labeled as “virtual” in the location information. Most internet courses do not require classroom attendance and course materials are accessible to students online. Instructors interact with students using e-mail and discussion forums. Some courses require students to participate in chats at certain times, and all students are required to take at least two proctored activities (such as exams, labs, etc.) on campus. Internet courses require students to meet certain technology requirements, including having Internet access and basic computer skills. For more information, please visit www.jtcc.edu. Click on Academics and then click on Division of Extended Learning and Distance Education for course outlines, technology requirements, registration procedures, prerequisites and other general information. If you fail to begin work on your course before the last day to drop with a refund, your instructor will withdraw you from the course for nonparticipation. After registering, please review the Blackboard information at www.jtcc.edu/mytyler for information on how to gain access to your course. Distance education courses will be made available to students in the first week of classes.

Weekend College. Weekend College (WEC) classes are designated in the schedule with a “W” in the section number (e.g., BIO 141-W1B). WEC classes require classroom attendance, but only for half the hours of traditional day and evening college classes. Classroom instruction is supplemented by materials and assignments that guide students in the intervals between classes. Students have telephone access to instructors for assistance during these intervals. A mandatory assignment must be completed before the first class. There are eight class meetings. Attendance, class preparation and completion of assignments are crucial for student success. Students can earn several degrees in their entirety via WEC: Associate of Applied Science (AAS) Degree in Business Management; AAS Degree in Nursing; and Associate of Arts and Sciences Degree for transfer. Call 804-706-5169 or visit www.jtcc.edu/wec for more information.

Special Enrollment Criteria for Weekend College Courses

Following are the enrollment requirements for WEC courses:

• New students (those who have completed less than 12 semester hours of college-level work) must demonstrate that they possess college-level reading and writing skills by attaining passing scores (as defined by the College) on John Tyler Community College’s reading and sentence-skills placement tests. Additionally, students may need to demonstrate that they possess college-level mathematics skills for enrollment in certain courses.

• Continuing students (those who have completed 12 or more semester hours of college-level work) must be in “good academic standing” and have a minimum cumulative grade point average of 2.0.

• Transfer students must be eligible to return to their former institutions and have completed at least 12 semester credits with a minimum cumulative grade point average of 2.0.

• To obtain syllabi and pre-class assignments, WEC students must go to www.jtcc.edu/wec, select the Summer 2008 link under Weekend College Course Listings, select the class, and scroll down the information page to select “Syllabus/Pre-class.” Syllabi will be available May 12, 2008.

Computer Short Courses. Computer short courses, like professional development courses, are designated in the schedule with a “P” in the section number (e.g., ITE 101-P1A). Computer short courses are one-credit (16 hours) courses on current software packages. While not in-depth courses, they provide students with the opportunity to “learn the basics.” Generally these classes meet for two Saturdays or for four evenings. Students have until the end of the first class to withdraw from the class. Non-attendance at the first session will result in a student being deleted from the class. Non-attendance at the second session may result in a failing grade. Please call 804-706-5169 for additional information.

Professional Development Courses. Professional development courses, like computer short courses, are designated in the schedule with a “P” in the section number (e.g., EDU 295-P1B). Professional development courses provide students with the opportunity to upgrade technology skills, meet recertification requirements, or explore new interests. Regular classroom attendance is required as per the stated college attendance policy. Please call 804-706-5169 for additional information.

Jennifer Carter
Welder, Plan B Design and Fabrication • John Tyler Alumna

Jennifer Carter is not the kind of girl who is afraid to get her hands dirty. Five days a week, Carter clocks in at Plan B Design and Fabrication in Richmond, flips on the classic rock, pulls out her welding equipment, and gets to work creating complex equipment used in the area’s top manufacturing plants. Carter measures her designs, rolls metal, and when she’s ready, lights her welding torches and, as sparks fly, joins metal with heat. It’s a job that requires expert knowledge of the fundamentals of arc and gas welding, as well as materials, product design, and shop safety—all of which Carter mastered through the welding program at John Tyler Community College.

Spark your own success story. Visit www.jtcc.edu/catalog or call the Division of Professional and Technical Studies at 804-706-5121 (Chester) or 804-594-1480 (Midlothian).
